We currently live in Hell. Think about that for a moment. This world is the Terrestrial Kingdom. The lowest of God's own Kingdoms.

Any place where we are out of the presence of God is considered Hell.

After the great rebellion in the pre-existence, those who kept not their first estate were sent to Earth without bodies. They were sentenced to Hell as it were.

We were sent here as well with our minds veiled over so we couldn't recall anything. So the devil and his followers have an advantage over us in this veiled state.

Answer me this.

If God has already sent us to Hell once, how can we be certain He won't just do it all over again when we die?

Being separated from God is hard enough as it is.

Why would I trust He wouldn't simply cast me here to such a place after all is said and done?
